“ The Young Ambassadors encourage and help young players to build confidence in their whole table tennis development

I am now on the league committee so I am Voice of the Youth, to help make decisions ... getting the opinions from the younger players as most of the league teams are older

The club also benefits from getting young people and their parents involved more fully in the wider club, which they are more likely to support in future years, if their experience is good. One of our young ambassadors has joined our league committee and helps organise a yearly youth presentation event, outside of assistant coach duties

Seeing a fairly quiet youngster develop the confidence to speak to a group of players while organising games, drills etc. I can see that this has a definite positive effect on his self-esteem and sense of worth.

For myself, it gives me enormous satisfaction to be able to offer this opportunity to young people, enabling them to develop confidence, a range of interpersonal skills, and also giving them something that they can offer too.
